Not Every Essential Is New
Speaking of safety devices on highway vehicles - the basic ones, and of major importance, are not new but old.

They are - not necessarily in the order mentioned - a steering wheel, brakes, and an accelerator intended for use at reasonable height, rather than at floorboard level.

Failure to use these elementary safety devices intelligently accounts for most of the accidents. - Nashville (Tenn.) Banner

Who's Fault

A fellow in Nevada, the fleeing state, filed a complaint that he lost about $200 in disability money trying to prove that a slot machine malfunctioned by paying $7.50 rather than $10 for a jackpot.

The judge in the case disposed of it with a truth that all too often is overlooked in the gaming field. He told the complainant that his losses were due to his playing rather than the machine's cheating. There are no losses in this business where there is no gambling in the first place. - Greenville (S.C.) News

Cost Of Crime

The incidence of crime is so high in 28 states, the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico that obtaining crime insurance is very difficult or very expensive, or both.

The problem has been so widespread that the federal government is thinking about underwriting crime insurance. More police and swifter justice would be cheaper. - Birmingham (Ala.) News

People And Money

In the space of two days, two separate news items presented a fascinating contrast between two people and their involvement with large sums of money.

Wednesday, we read about the San Pedro, Calif., woman, Jolene Gearin, who inherited $200,000 after having lived in a $75 a month apartment with her four children. It took her only four years to spend the last dime.

Then Thursday, there was the story about another California woman, Lucille Rutshaw of San Diego. For 20 years she sold flowers grown in her back yard each day. Thousands of sailors knew her as "The Flower Lady." She died in 1961, but now it has been revealed that she left an estate - $200,000. Interest on the money will in perpetuity go to charity. The first 10 years' interest was $73,000.

The contrast, again, is fascinating: Four years in one case to exhaust it; forever in another case for the money to go on and on, multiplying itself and helping others. Money, of course, makes people neither fools nor saints. But a lot of it certainly seems to amplify their deeds when they demonstrate what they are. - Birmingham (Ala.) News

Dock Strike May End Soon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Bill Alexander, D-Ark., said Thursday that he had been assured by officials of the longshoremen's union that striking Gulf Coast dock workers were prepared to return to work under their old contract if negotiations for a new contract would continue.

Alexander said he received the assurance from Thomas G. Gleason, president of the International Longshoremen's Association, who promised to include the assurance in a letter to Alexander.

SCA to Add New BA Building

CONWAY, Ark. (AP) — Plans were announced Thursday for construction of a $15 million business administration center at State College of Arkansas here.

Dr. Silas D. Snow, president of the college, said the new building would be financed with a state appropriation of $943,634 and the remainder from a federally-guaranteed loan.

A CAT MAY ALWAYS LAND on its feet, but that doesn't mean there can't sometimes be problems, such as the broken leg which nine-week-old "Duchess" of St. Petersburg, Fla., got for jumping out of a tree and landing too hard. In traction, she still gets around very well, thank you, and in the best play-must-go-on tradition doesn't let a little thing like that stop her from batting around the old spool with the good paw, right.

Doubletalkers Say One Thing While They Are Thinking of Another

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — You're a doubletalker if you say one thing while you're thinking of another.

Everyone doubletalks except very young children who haven't yet learned that telling the truth isn't always either politic or wise. Your skill at doubletalking usually is a measure of your social grace.

For the beginner who needs practice, here are a few typical examples of doubletalk. What the person said is in quotes, followed in each case by what he actually thought.

"How can you be so bright and fresh so early in the morning, Alice?" — She looks like she was in a car accident last night.

"Cooks may come and cooks may go, but no one can bake biscuits like you do, Mabel." — What did you cook these with—a blowtorch?

"When it comes to Martinis, I can take them or leave them alone." — Pour, brother, pour. Let's don't waste time talking.

"What can money really do for you in the last analysis? Who needs a million dollars to be happy?" — Me.

"Well," the old saying goes, "Beauty is only skin deep." — So, isn't it a shame you have such a thin skin, darling?

"Will all you passengers kindly move to the rear of the bus, please?" — And then jump out the window.

"And if I'm not telling you the literal and exact truth, may heaven strike me dead!" — Don't do it, Lord. I've got my fingers crossed.

"I can't think of a way to repay you for all the things you've done for me." — So I won't even try.

"It's pure nonsense for us to go on with this silly feuding. Why don't we let bygones be bygones and bury the hatchet?" — In your back would be a nice place.

"Baby, I could really go for you. You've got a million-dollar body." — And a 10-cent mind.

"I haven't seen you in ages. Where in the world have you been hiding?" — Wherever it was, go back and find a better place.

"No, we don't carry that brand, but we have one that is just as good or maybe even a little bit better." — Or maybe even a little bit or whole lot worse.

"Of course, I could have brought you a dozen roses, but I decided these daisies would perk you up more. They're so cheerful looking." — And so much cheaper, too.

"Why, what a pleasant surprise to hear from you, Janice. My husband and I were speaking of you just before you called." — And if you only heard what we said about you, darling, would your fat little face turn red!

"God broke the mold after he made you." — Well, at least that's one thing to be grateful for.

Tooth Fairy Hit by Freeze

WEST PLAINS, Mo. (AP) — The way Randy Patterson saw it, the fact that he had lost his tooth in a football game entitled him to some extra compensation from the tooth fairy.

Randy, 7, so advised the fairy in a note placed with the tooth under his pillow. What he had in mind, he said, was some "folding money."

Under the pillow the next morning, Randy found just a quarter and a note which read: "Sorry, President Nixon's price freeze is in effect until Nov. 13."

Pakistan Is Buying Arms From China

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense sources say Pakistan has sent freighters to Communist China and Romania to pick up arms and ammunition as tension rises between Pakistan and neighboring India.

Meanwhile, U.S. intelligence analysts suggest the possibility of increasing effectiveness of an estimated 23,000 guerrillas in East Pakistan might prompt the Pakistanis to attack guerrilla training camps reported to be in India.

Intelligence specialists doubt that India will deliberately start a war with Pakistan. But they say that growing military forces facing each other across the Indian-Pakistan border intensify the possibility of a clash from miscalculations. The next three months are considered critical.

The military equipment used by both countries is a mixed bag, chiefly of American, British and Communist origin. Increasingly in recent years, the Indians have relied on the Russians, and the Pakistanis on the Communist Chinese for arms.

According to intelligence reports, a Pakistani merchant ship was enroute late last week to Communist China to load artillery, mortars, vehicles and ammunition for Chinese-manufactured tanks used by the Pakistanis.

A second Pakistani ship was reported bound for Romania to take on rifles, machine guns and small-arms ammunition.

Because of the political sensitivity of U.S. relations with the two rival countries, the Pentagon classifies figures covering the bulk of U.S. military aid to India and Pakistan since 1950. By conservative estimates, this aid has run into hundreds of millions of dollars.

The only declassified figures available show that since 1966 outright U.S. grant aid to India has totaled $4 million and to Pakistan about $400,000. These allotments were for training only, the Pentagon said.

In that same period military sales to India have come to about $9 million, to Pakistan about $4.2 million.

Senators Ask Sees Beauty in Many Things That Some People Have Discarded

WASHINGTON (AP) — Environmentalists made an eleventh-hour plea today in an effort to halt the detonation of a five-megaton underground nuclear device on chilly, rain-swept Amchitka Island in the Alaskan Aleutians.

The appeal before the Supreme Court came just hours before the hydrogen bomb was set to explode at 5 p.m. EST.

The Justices evidently are the last hope of eight environmental organizations and their sympathizers who fear the explosion might trigger earthquakes, release radioactive debris and generate giant seawaves.

Thirty-five senators, headed by Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass., have petitioned President Nixon to stop the test, but the administration has stood fast to its position that government investigators have turned up no real reason for delay.

The one-hour Court hearing was granted over the justice Department's opposition at the request of the Committee for Nuclear Responsibility and the seven allied groups. Two lower courts had rejected their bid for a postponement.

The blast was to take place at the bottom of a shaft nearly 6,000 feet deep. Code-named Cannikin, it is designed to test a nuclear warhead for use in the Spartan antiballistic missile, which is scheduled to become operational in 1974.

There are unsubstantiated reports in Canada that radical groups have threatened to blow up 50 plants owned by corporations based in the United States if the explosion takes place.

Board Hires Lawyers in Vote Machine Case

CONWAY, Ark. (AP) — The Faulkner County Board of Election Commissioners held a special open meeting Thursday and again voted to hire two Conway lawyers to represent the board in litigation over voting machines for the county.

The board met Tuesday, but called a special meeting, because the board had been accused with violating the state's Freedom of Information Act by not informing the news media of Tuesday's meeting.

In both Tuesday's and Thursday's meeting, the board voted to hire George L. Hartje Jr. and William C. Brazil to represent the district in the matter.

Pros. Atty. Alex Streett of Russellville, who would have represented the board without charge, was turned down by the board.

Tom Lindsey, a member of the board, said the commissioners had nothing "personal" against Streett, but that it was a "local affair" and the board wanted local attorneys who knew more about the situation.

The board was named in a suit filed Tuesday in Circuit Court here asking for an order to compel the board to initiate a plan to obtain voting machines.

The suit says that despite public approval of the use of voting machines in the 1968 general election, the board has not taken steps to acquire the machines.

An attorney general's opinion ruled that the board was required to obtain the machines. A hearing on the suit has been set for 9 a.m. Saturday in Circuit Court Judge Russell Robert's court.

During Thursday's meeting, the board outlined a plan by which the district might acquire the machines.

The board proposed a bond issue to finance the machines. As an alternative, the board said the county could buy the machines out of surplus county funds at the rate of one each year or however many the funds would allow.

Pine Bluff Commercial
STUTTGART, Ark. (AP) — "None of my friends throw anything away anymore... they bring most of their garbage to me," said Mrs. L. H. Hula Sr.

"Ever since I was a child, I have seen beauty in things most people would discard," she said. "For example, I would see a weed and think of a dried arrangement it would look beautiful in. Now, I wouldn't dream of throwing a plastic bottle away. I can cut it up and make flowers and purses out of it long after its contents have been used."

Mrs. Hula, a widow, began her craft in earnest about 15 years ago, mainly as a means of providing gifts for patients in Stuttgart's nursing home and hospital, she said. Also, while working with church groups, the Girl Scouts and the extension homemakers clubs, she began using her creative talents to teach others.

"I never mind showing people how to make things," Mrs. Hula said. "My talents were given to me by God and I thank him every day for them."

As more people became aware of her handiwork, they began bringing their normally discarded items to her.

"Often when I return home from a day away," she said, "I find plastic scraps of material or wrapping paper on my doorstep."

"The nurses at the nursing home keep the wire stems from flower arrangements for me because they know I can use them," she continued. "A rice farmer and a soybean farmer bring me rice and soybeans for my jewelry and arrangements—not all I use is junk."

"The shoe manufacturer throws out large pieces of fabric I can use, so I asked him if I could have it... He said yes, but I hate to go digging into their trash... I'm not a scavenger."

Mrs. Hula's home is her workshop with each room either a showroom for her craft or a storage room for her materials. Her breakfast table is her working table, piled high with egg cartons, wire stems, plastic bottles, seeds and glue.

"My son put a storage shed out back since my house was becoming so crowded I couldn't walk," Mrs. Hula said. "Now I can't walk in the storage shed either."

King has not only been Hornbrook's companion for 10 years but also one of his hardest workers at the station. On command, the dog will take a customer's money, carry it to the cash register and carry the change Hornbrook gives him back to the customer.

"King only handles bills," said Hornbrook. "He doesn't like silver in his mouth."

In fact, a silver half dollar was the only money King has swallowed. It could be described as an accident since Hornbrook had been pitching pieces of food to King before a customer pulled into the station.

"I flipped the half dollar to King and told him to take it to the customer. He must have thought it was food because he swallowed it," said Hornbrook.

Besides handling money, King also will carry greasy rags to Hornbrook and pick paper from the lot.

"King never lets the front get dirty with paper," said Hornbrook.

The dog meets the mail carrier every day to get the mail and Hornbrook said the dog also can mail a letter.

King guards the station at night. Hornbrook said, "King just loves the station. He would rather be there than at home because more people are here."

King also likes to chew bubble gum and drink soft drinks from a bottle. He swallows the gum after a few chews.

Old Saying Will Have to Be Expanded

FORT SMITH, Ark. (AP) — The old saying "man's best friend" would have to be expanded to include "worker" in describing King, a German Shepherd owned by Wick Hornbrook, a service station owner in Van Buren.

Foreign Aid Bill Still Not Settled

WASHINGTON (AP) — A White House aide is betting Congress will wind up with a foreign aid bill near $2.8 billion—about 95 per cent of what President Nixon wanted in the first place.

But House foreign aid opponents have begun organizing an effort to sharply limit even interim extension of the program next Tuesday. Top House leaders doubted it would succeed but they weren't certain.

Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford said he believes the House will approve the continuing resolution for foreign aid, defense and the antipoverty program at the present level even though no nose counts have been taken.

Other leaders believed the House was unlikely to press a foreign aid stand on the continuing resolution since the Senate, and probably the House, would be working on regular foreign aid bills during the week.

But House GOP conference chairman John B. Anderson of Illinois said he believes enough opponents of military aid for Indochina may join the House' large anti-foreign aid bloc Tuesday to curb even the interim extension.

The House opponents have drafted one amendment to prohibit any new interim money, limiting foreign aid to the $4.6 billion already in the pipeline, and another to temporarily extend the program only to Dec. 1.

If not amended, the resolution would continue foreign aid at a level of $2.85 billion in addition to the pipeline money until Congress adjourns this year after putting out a regular foreign aid bill.

The Senate begins action Wednesday on separate military and economic foreign aid bills totalling $2.3 billion with administration forces pledged to try to get the total back up near the $2.9 billion bill killed by the Senate a week ago.

The House Foreign Relations Committee meets Monday and Chairman Thomas E. (Doc) Morgan, D-Pa., says it probably will put out a bill cut to the range of $3 billion from the House' original $3.4 billion bill.

This would be close to the 10 per cent foreign aid cut President Nixon proposed in August as part of his emergency economic program.

The White House advisor's optimism for a final $2.8 billion foreign aid bill is based on a down-the-middle House-Senate compromise between the House' $3 billion and a Senate increase to about $2.6 billion.

Rainfall Gives North Ireland Quiet Night

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Drenching rain Thursday night brought Northern Ireland its quietest night in two years.

The streets of Belfast were deserted except for small army foot patrols and two snipers who fired a couple of shots at the soldiers in a Roman Catholic district, then disappeared. The snipers missed, and the soldiers didn't fire back.

In Italy, police were posted outside all British diplomatic and commercial offices in Rome and Milan after a bomb exploded at the British Embassy to the Vatican Thursday night. The explosion shattered the windows of the embassy but caused little other damage. A passerby was treated at a hospital for a broken arm and head cuts.

The initials of the Irish Republican Army, which is trying to drive the British out of Northern Ireland, were painted near the window where the bomb had been placed. But a police spokesman said it was premature to consider the IRA responsible.

Film Star Files Damage Suit

NEW YORK (AP) — Pola Negri, one of the most famous of silent film stars, is going to have her day in court over an anti-histamine advertisement.

U.S. District Court Judge Frederick van Pelt Bryan ruled Wednesday that Miss Negri's $500,000 damage suit against the Schering Corp., of Bloomfield, N.J., will be brought to trial.

Miss Negri, now 71 and living in San Antonio, Tex., said the pharmaceutical company violated her civil rights by using a 49-year-old photograph of her to advertise the antihistamine.

The photo is a still from "Bella Donna" released in 1922 and shows Miss Negri with her leading man, Conway Tearle.

"The policy underlying the New York civil rights statute is to protect any living person against the unauthorized use of his or her name or picture for commercial exploitation," the judge ruled.

LIFE on the WATER

Life on Bangkok's waterways is lively, colorful—and crowded. The Thai capital is also the country's chief port. It's built on both banks of the Chao Phraya River, is crisscrossed by numerous smaller streams and canals or "klongs" and is often referred to as the "Venice of Asia."

Thousands of its residents live on the water in boats, or in houses built over and beside the water. Waterways are the city's main thoroughfares. You can catch a water taxi, canoes peddle fruit and vegetables from house to house, sampans operate as floating snack bars, and strings of barges loaded with rice, coconuts, bananas and pineapple converge on the site of the famous floating market, or carry heavier cargoes to the port. And now the police department has assigned waterborne traffic cops to untangle the traffic jams on the canals.

Tourist motor launches move down one of Bangkok's canals toward two girls poling their sampan. Behind, to the left, is a typical Thai building and, to the right, a modern apartment house.

Waterborne peddlers do a brisk trade, finding plenty of customers going about their business by water.

A small flotilla of tourist launches bobs in front of the pagodas on shore to the left. Behind the launches, right, is a Thai naval vessel.

THOUGHTS

"You are my friends if you do what I command you. No longer do I call you servants, for the servant does not know what his master is doing; but I have called you friends, for all that I have heard from my Father I have made known to you."—John 15:14, 15

Lead the life that will make you kindly and friendly to everyone about you, and you will be surprised what a happy life you will live.—Charles M. Schwab, industrialist

The point is this: He who sows sparingly will also reap sparingly, and he who sows bountifully will also reap bountifully.—II Cor. 9:6

A really great man is known by three signs—generosity in the design, humanity in the execution, moderation in success.—Otto von Bismarck, German chancellor.

SHOWBEAT

Reddy Set, Goes To Top of Charts

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD—(NEA)—Maybe it's the subliminal effect of Women's Lib. Maybe it's just a cycle. Maybe it's coincidence. But for one reason or another, girl vocalists are back in business.

For awhile there, with a few exceptions (Pet Clark and Barbra Streisand), if you wanted to hear a girl sing you had to tune in to old records or singing commercials. But now we've got Carole King and Joni Mitchell and, best of all, Helen Reddy.

Helen's record of "I Don't Know How to Love Him," the big hit from "Jesus Christ Superstar," shot her from nowhere to somewhere in 33 1/2 minutes. And she has followed it up with other hits, a sure sign that she isn't just another one-shot singer.

Helen is an Australian girl who always wanted to get out. She says you just can't leave Australia like you can leave Dallas—"you can't hitchhike to America, or take a bus or drive"—so she saved her shillings for eight years and it still wasn't enough.

She entered a big contest for Australian singers. First prize was a trip to New York and a recording contract. More than 1,300 entered. Helen Reddy won.

She went to New York and found that the recording contract just didn't exist. Immediately, she had problems—financial and also with U.S. immigration. She worked anywhere she could—Irish bars in New York "where I tried to sing louder than the drunks" and Catskill resorts and Canada.

Some friends gave her a "pay-the-rent" party and she met a young agent named Jeff Wald and it was love at first sight.

"We met on a Friday," Helen says, "and began living together the next Tuesday. We couldn't get married, because I'd had an earlier marriage in Australia and couldn't get divorced. I couldn't get an American divorce because I wasn't a citizen, and I couldn't get an Australian divorce because in Australia it takes seven years."

All her problems are now cleared up. She has a permanent resident alien card. Her first husband died. Helen and Jeff are married. And it was Jeff who found her big hit record.

And she has more singing offers than she can handle.

FANNY, ROCK'S answer to Phil Sitalny and his all Girl Orchestra, is still trying to convince people it's a serious group of singers and not just a women's lib gimmick. They are, from left, June Millington, Alice De Buhr, Jean Millington and Mickey Barclay.

There's even an all-girl rock group—Fanny—making it today. Fanny is the trade name of four young things who play solid, driving rock and compete on equal terms with the all-male groups. In theory, it's like an all-girl football team, but somehow Fanny manages to be feminine and play rock at the same time.

They've been together about a year and a half. There are two sisters—Jean and June Millington—plus Nicky Barclay and drummer Alice DeBuhr. All four are dedicated and they're not about to let girlish things like home and marriage and kids stay them from their appointed date with fame and fortune. Nicky is married. But to the group's soundman and that's no problem. As for kids, Nicky says, "Maybe in 10 or 15 years when we're rich we'll adopt some, but not now—I've seen too many rock 'n' roll babies to want that."

The girls say that are advantages to being an all-girl rock group. On the road, nobody hassles them because of their long hair. Boy rock groups frequently have that annoyance. And they say they get nice dressing rooms. But there are some disadvantages. They claim that it took a long time before they were taken seriously. And they want to be measured by their music, not by their measurements.

Lately, they find a strange phenomenon happening. Young men are starting to hang around the dressing room doors. Maybe one day there will be the male equivalent of groups.

Southern Specialty: Pecan Pie

By Cecily Brownstone

Associated Press Food Editor

There are various kinds of pecan pie. All the authentic versions call for dark corn syrup but after that the ingredients vary. Some versions use granulated sugar, some brown sugar. Some recipes call for flour or cornstarch, others use no such thickening. Most often pecan halves are put in, but occasionally the nuts are chopped. Eggs, like corn syrup, are always used but their number varies. Sometimes butter goes in, sometimes it doesn't.

Most pecan-pie fans like this dessert best when it is ravishingly rich. So when recently we tasted a pie that fits into that category we asked for the recipe to pass along to you. In spite of its richness, it doesn't call for butter.

CRUNCHY PECAN PIE

9-inch unbaked pie shell, see below

1/2 cup sugar
1 1/2 tablespoons cornstarch
4 large eggs
2 cups dark corn syrup
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
1/8 teaspoon salt
1 1/2 cups coarsely chopped pecans
12 pecan halves for garnish

Prepare pastry shell and refrigerate.

In a small mixing bowl stir together the sugar and cornstarch.

In a medium mixing bowl beat eggs just enough to combine yolks and whites. Stir in sugar-cornstarch mixture, corn syrup, vanilla and salt, blending thoroughly.

Sprinkle chopped pecans over bottom of pie shell. Pour syrup mixture over pecans. Arrange pecan halves on top around edge of filling.

Bake in a preheated 425-degree oven 10 minutes; reduce temperature to 325 degrees and bake until filling is firm and top is cracked and puffy — 40 minutes. Cool.

PECAN PIE — It's the crunchy kind because the pecans used in it are chopped.

Serve with unsweetened whipped cream garnished with very thin slices of preserved ginger.

Makes 8 to 10 servings.

PIE SHELL

1 1/3 cups sifted flour
1/8 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup (quarter-pound stick) margarine

2 tablespoons cold water

In a medium mixing bowl stir together the flour and salt. With a pastry blender cut in margarine until particles are tiny. Sprinkle water over mixture while tossing with a fork so mixture is well blended. Press dough firmly into ball with hands. (If mixture seems crumbly, work with hands until it will hold together.) Flatten dough slightly and roll out to 12-inch circle on floured pastry cloth, using floured stockinet-covered rolling pin. Fit loosely into 9-inch pie plate. Trim 1/2-inch beyond rim of pie plate if necessary. Flute edge. Fill and bake shell according to directions in recipe for Crusty Pecan Pie.

After Some Training in the Sky:

By DICK KLEINER

LOS ANGELES—(NEA)—Maybe one reason why airline stewardesses make good wives is because of the hostess crouch.

Darlene Fuentes, an 11-year veteran of flying, is currently supervisor of hostess training for Continental Airlines. (They prefer "hostess" to "stewardess.") She says statistics prove that there are fewer divorces in families where the wife was a stewardess than for any other profession.

Mrs. Fuentes, a tall blonde from Union Mills, Ind., who is married to a Los Angeles policeman, says there are some good solid reasons why hostesses' stewardesses make good wives.

"Being a hostess," she says, "is the best possible training for being a housewife. Working in an airplane is identical to having a home."

And in a y b e housewives could learn a little something by watching hostesses, next time they fly.

"Being a hostess," she says, "has made me almost temperless. Girls who've done it for two or three years have to develop patience, ingenuity, common sense. And they have to learn to care for people."

And there's more basic housewifery training than just mental attitude, too.

The hostess crouch, for example. That's the business of leaning over to serve a passenger. That, plus the stretching to put things in the overhead rack, and retrieve them, combine to give hostesses a program of near-isometrical exercises.

"You don't see many hostesses with flabby thighs," Mrs. Fuentes says. "Every time she works, she flexes her knees slightly, and lets her thighs do the work. That's the best possible prevention for flabby thighs."

At some of the airlines, hostesses have periodic weight checks. When they are hired, they are given a complete physical, and the doctor assigns them weight limits. Once a month, ever after, Mrs. Fuentes' hostesses have a weight check—and they're fired if they don't hit their marks.

"Being a hostess," Mrs. Fuentes says, "is just what the word implies, and it prepares a girl for social events. If you can explain to 124 people why the coffee tastes a little peculiar today, then you can explain to one man across a breakfast table."

She says that hostess training helps a woman talk to people. She remembers once, on a flight, meeting a man who was a peanut grower, and he told her all about his business. She can now converse with any other peanut grower she happens to meet—and that goes for dozens of other professions.

She says the girls learn about food, how to prepare it and serve it with a flair. She says they travel all over and eat always at the finest restaurants. Thus, when they marry, they usually prepare a fine table for their husbands.

They learn to carve roasts, to taste and understand wines, to be gracious hostesses.

"You have to be at the door when your guests come on the airplane," she says. "It's a $23-million house, but you are the hostess. The only thing we don't have to do is wash the dishes. But we take the coats, smile, chit-chat."

She says that being a hostess is the perfect finishing school for a girl who wants to marry. And, meanwhile, it's a very good job.

"It's a great job," Mrs. Fuentes says. "A senior girl on our Hawaii run works eight days a month—for $1,195. And while she's doing it, she's preparing herself to be a good wife."

ARTS REALIGNMENT
SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — A College of Visual and Performing Arts has been established at Syracuse University. Its components are the School of Art, the School of Music, the department of speech and the department of drama.

This is a realignment. The School of Speech and Dramatic Art is dissolved, with its television-radio department going into the S.I. Newhouse School of Public Communications and its department of audio and speech pathology transferred to the School of Education.

BEACH BOY WINS CASE
LOS ANGELES (AP) — A federal court reversed itself and granted Carl Wilson of the Beach Boys permission to carry out a unique alternative service program under the U.S. Selective Service Act.

Wilson will be allowed to satisfy his draft obligation by performing with the Beach Boys at prisons, hospitals and orphanages.

Fashion and Beauty

Knee Pants

With all the fashion freedom — lots of different lengths and lots of layers — pants, too, are offering many different looks. Now there are wide flared bellbottoms, straight legs, knickers, gauchos and knee pants. Knee pants are slightly longer and closer fitting than the gaucho, a little like the pedal-pusher of the days of yore, but with bright tights adding a modern flair. Pants that come in regular length may be rolled to look like the new roll-ups. So much for fashion freedom.

Robin Hood Top

Riding through the glen. That's Robin Hood. It's also a new look from Paris. So if you want to look like one of Robin Hood's men, try a deep sea green wool jersey tunic top. The tunic features extended shoulders, big armholes and is gathered at the waist by a matching belt. The pants are narrow and cuffed. You can even get a pocketbook that looks like a quiver to carry your arrows. And if you want to carry the look all the way through, there's always a Robin Hood hat.

Going Exotic

The clothing designers are going exotic. Back to the Orient for fashion ideas. The wide-legged pajama outfits with geometric printed flowers in paint box colors sing of China-mania.

Billowing Bare

The new billowing bare evening dresses have fuller skirts and are made of light-colored fabrics with fabrics of filmy gossamer silks. The look is sheer elegance.

Military Look

The military or carefully tailored look in jackets may be beautifully contrasted with translucent crepe blouses with clumps of flowers or fruit gathering at the neck.

Lip Gloss

Colorless lip gloss can serve as more than a lip moisturizer. Try using it just below the eyebrow as a sparkling eye highlight.

More on Lips

Let your colored lip glosses double as a cheek gloss. If the color is of a brown shade, use it for facial contour.

Natural Look

The close-to-nature look in clothes offers a soft, fluid natural look. But besides that it brings the things of nature, flowers, brightly colored birds and fish, into full focus on your clothes.

By Oswald & James Jacoby
At one table in a recent team match East opened with one of those bids we used to describe as "Gulps." He gulped and bid one club. South overcalled with one heart. West raised clubs. North jumped to three hearts and South continued to the doubtful game.

West opened his partner's suit and since the heart finesse was on and the diamonds behaved nicely South scored his game.

At the other table, East made the sensible call of "Pass." South opened with one heart in fourth seat. North raised to three and for reasons best known to collected a diamond, two black aces and a diamond ruff.

The main point is that East was punished for his ineffective club opening. Some players open in third seat with East's type of hand. We have never seen any advantage in this kind of bid. In addition, any time third hand holds a proper minimum type opening his partner will be afraid that he holds something like this one.

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB
Man Believes Ills Due to Hormones

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I read your column regarding the prostate gland. I am 55 and have no trouble yet. I want to have my testicles removed now so I won't have trouble later. I'm willing to donate my testicles to any man for a transplant or ca-himself South carried on to game.

West did not have the advantage of a lead directing bid. After looking over his unattractive group of cards he played the queen of diamonds.

This turned out to be a devastating lead. South had no way to get to his hand for a quick trump finesse and eventually the defense

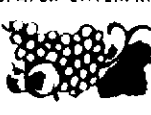

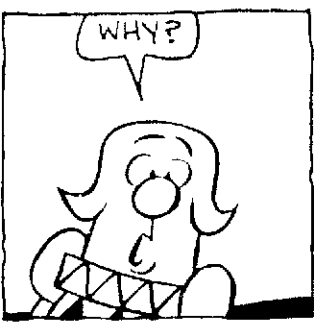

Most men would prefer to remain as they are, ill and all. I have thought carefully about how to answer your question and think you should go see a doctor. Why don't you discuss your concern with him? I suspect he would like for you to talk to a psychiatrist since so many emotional factors are involved in such matters and the discussion would probably be good for you as well as interesting. You wouldn't want to do something that you might regret later, and you would need to explore your feelings carefully with someone who can review your reactions with you in person.

Dear Dr. Lamb—I am 78 and drink about nine cups of coffee a day with a spoonful of sugar in each. I used saccharin altogether for a number of years, until this cyclamate scare when saccharin was also mentioned. I believe saccharin has been declared not to be so dangerous, but I would like for you to say if it is O.K. to go back to it.

Dear Reader—You have a good memory. Saccharin was indeed questioned at the same time cyclamates were discontinued. There have been some reports of its possible relationship to cancer of the bladder in rats.

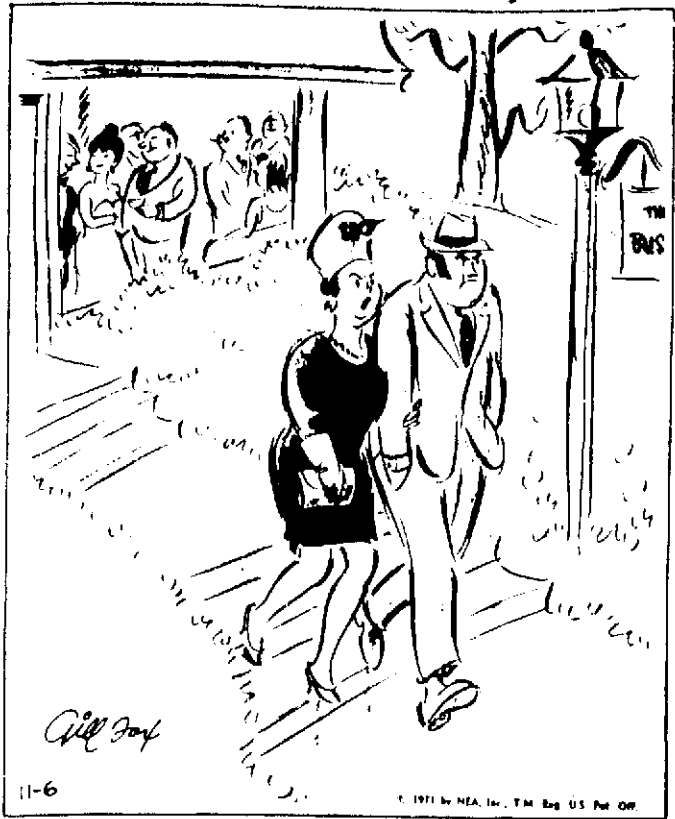

The removal of cyclamates for human use was really required because a law makes it illegal to sell any foods that have been demonstrated to cause cancer in animals (whether or not they cause cancer in people). The law doesn't sound like it was written by anyone with even the most elementary concept of research. I have been unable to understand why the law applies to cyclamates but not saccharin. There is no research evidence to show

Bobcats Win 15-14 Over Nashville

By Bill Moore
Star Sports Writer

The game is over, the season is ended, and the Hope Bobcats did exactly what they were supposed to do beat the Nashville Scrappers!

Taking an early 7-0 lead, the Cats found the going for victory rough as the lead slipped away from them with Nashville holding a 14-7 margin at half-time, before Hope came out fired up in the second half to grab the lead back, 15-14, and keep it.

For Hope the season ends with a respectable 7-3 record and for those sixteen seniors a three year career mark of 25 wins and eight losses. Nashville closed our regular season play with the same 7-3 mark and will possibly represent district 7A in the state playoffs.

Opening the game up, the Bobcats kicked off and immediately the Scrappers started driving until a fumble at the Hope 17 yard line killed the drive. With the ball then being exchanged for the next four minutes, the Bobcats received a Nashville punt at their own 31 yard line with 4:37 left in the first quarter.

Using the solid running of halfback Ray Wheelington and fullback David Johnson, the Cats gained good yardage almost every play while moving toward the Scrapper end zone. On second down and twelve yards to go from the Scrapper 33, Johnson took off on a left end sweep and went all the way to cap a 69 yard, ten play drive.

With the Ball Splitting the uprights on the extra point attempt by Tim White, Hope stood out in front, 7-0, with only 1:59 left in the period.

With Nashville recovering a loose pigskin early in the second period after a loose bobble, the Scrapper went to work from the Cat 36 yard line. And with such good field position it didn't take long to score.

With fullback Larry Ray doing most of the ball carrying, Nashville moved quickly to the Hope two yard line, where on second down, Ray jumped into the end zone for the Scrapper score with 9:13 left in the half. A pass interference call on the two point conversion attempt gave the Nashville eleven another opportunity and this time they kicked the ball through the goalposts for a 7-7 deadlock, which was not to be that way long.

Seconds later after the kickoff, a pass interception gave Nashville perfect field position at the Bobcat 41 yard line.

Slowly churning yardage down the field, the Scrappers faced a fourth and 18 at the Cat 34 yard line with only a minute to go in the half. Quarterback James Jamison dropped back and hooked up with flanker Randy Walton on a touchdown scoring 34 yard pass play to give the Scrappers the lead at halftime.

The extra point kick sailed neatly through the crossbars for the fourteenth point as Nashville took a 14-7 lead—and they took it right on in to the dressing room. Hope, receiving the second half kickoff, started driving beautifully toward the goal line before a pass interception at the Scrapper 15 yard line by Jamison killed another drive.

However, minutes later the Cats again took possession of the pigskin at their own 25, and decided to change things up a bit. The score for one thing.

With Wheelington and Johnson running and Quarterback Robie Boyd passing to end Steve Harris and Ricky Hart, the Bobcats started knocking off huge chunks of yardage, and finally with a second and goal at the Scrapper two, Johnson bulled his way into the end zone for the touchdown. Now behind by just one point, the Cats elected to go for two points and Boyd hit Buddy Ingram with a quick pass. Ingram beat everyone else to over the last chalk line and the Cats had their 15-14 margin—one they did not give up!

Pittman's Philosophy on Football

EDITOR'S NOTE: Jim Pittman, Texas Christian's football coach who died of a heart attack Saturday night, never demanded more of his players than he gave himself. Associated Press Southwest Sports Editor Denne Freeman had a long talk with Pittman about his football philosophy before the season began and was on hand to cover the beginning of the Pittman era at TCU on Sept. 18 when the Horned Frogs met UT-Arlington. Here are some of Freeman's impressions about the coach.

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Everyone would have understood if Jim Pittman had forsaken football for a less pressurized pursuit.

The burly 46-year-old had a history of heart trouble. He suffered severe heart attacks twice while on the staff of Texas Coach Darrell Royal.

But football was a tonic he had to have.

Pressed about the demands of big time football coaching Pittman would say "I wouldn't change professions. I've enjoyed my coaching career and plan to keep enjoying it."

Pittman took delight in molding awkward, immature youngsters into football players and men.

"The most gratifying thing is to see greenhorns develop, improve and get poised to the point that they later turn into outstanding citizens," Pittman would say. "It is pleasing to hear one say what value he gained from football and from our association."

Pittman had the reputation of getting the best—and then some—out of the material on hand. He was a master recruiter who could sweet talk a prospect with his soft Boyle, Mississippi drawl.

He took Tulane from a laughed-at ragged doormat to the Green Wave's first bowl game in 30 years in 1970 with a 17-3 victory over Colorado in the Liberty Bowl.

But the lure to come back to the Southwest Conference was too strong although he was secure at Tulane.

"I'd always wanted to see how I could do against Darrell," Pittman laughed. "I learned a lot from him to use against him."

But he never got the chance. Pittman was an assistant under Murray Warmath at Mississippi State and spent 12 years with Royal at Mississippi State, Washington and Texas.

"You can learn a lot working with men like that," Pittman said.

Pittman was a hard disciplinarian.

When he came to TCU, he cracked down in the spring. The hair got shorter and the practices got harder. Some players left, including a group of blacks.

But one black player who stayed, Larry Harris, had an explanation: "They just didn't want to pay the price to win. You always have people hanging around a squad like that. Coach Pittman found out who wanted to go."

Pittman said "I expect—and demand—maximum effort from my players as long as they are on the football field. There is a natural tendency for a player to give about 85 per cent. I have a saying that 'this is the top of the poorest and the bottom of the best.'"

Players never walked on the TCU practice football field. They ran everywhere they went and never took off their head gear.

Pittman said "It's not how much you know, but how well you can teach and motivate."

And he added "You must make them work hard but also make it enjoyable and have some fun."

But Pittman said the man who probably had the most influence on him was his Boyle High School coach Bob Williams.

"He was a great psychologist and could get tremendous effort out of a small number of players," Pittman said.

This was the foundation Pittman hoped to use to eventually challenge the Southwest Conference powers of Arkansas and Texas. He knew he would never have the depth.

"I kind of relish the underdog role," Pittman said. "I love to spring those ambushes."

Pittman had nothing but admiration for the college athletes because he said "young people in athletics know the true meaning of having to sacrifice to have something."

Pittman's teachings carried to the very end. Informed of his death in a Waco hospital with the score tied at halftime against Baylor 20-20, his team fired back for a 34-27 victory Saturday night.

Quarterback Steve Judy summed it up: The game itself the happenings of it—are not that important except that we won it for him.

He always taught us to give 100 per cent and I'm glad to say that we did just that for him. It is tragic to lose a leader as great as he was.

Paula Sperber
Bowling champion

She's the Joe Namath of Women's Bowling

NEW YORK — (NEA) — When Paula Sperber, blonde, hazel-eyed, 20-year-old woman's U.S. Open Bowling champion, asks, "What's wrong with a little sex in bowling?", some people immediately think her mind is in the gutter.

It's pinning a bum rap on her. Paula is a homebody, even if she's not homely. Why, her mother even makes most of her clothes, from her low-scooped blouse to her Hot Pants suit.

When Paula is on the road she calls her parents daily. They live in Miami. Recently Paula was in Tokyo for nearly three weeks and called home 10 times, at $18 a minute, for about 10 minutes each call. That comes to about $1,800.

But Paula is beginning to make money on the tour, though not even J. Paul Getty or Dotty Fothergill could afford such phone bills regularly. She is winning on the tour ($12,000 so far this year) and is beginning to capitalize on her high scores, and ample and leggy personality. Recently, for example, she became the youngest member of the AMF advisory staff.

There have been some outstanding women bowlers in the past who have not made as big a splash in their entire careers as Paula has made in the two years she has been a pro bowler.

She has been called "The Female Namath" because she says she likes to do things like train for long hours at a discotheque the night before a bowling match. Once, she remembers staying up all night, eating oysters with champagne at 7 in the morning and then bowling four hours later.

Miniskirts are to Paula what white cleats are to Namath. This has upset some of the older ladies on the tour. For awhile, Paula was depressed by the lack of ap-
